ABOUT THE EVENT

Climate Change has taken on a Kafkaesque quality and morphed to a Climate Emergency. This suggests the current patterns of global development are not sustainably viable. Consequently, solutions needed to address the numerous challenges of multiple interacting investment, organisational, environmental, governance and social ecosystems to address the Climate Emergency - are urgently required. However, to be effective, they need to be accompanied by a balance between both reductions in the total level of consumption and production of goods and services as well as a realignment of how products and services are offered and consumed in order that a section of global society is not marginalised. The future must be created with Climate Justice at its heart.

AREAS IN NEED OF ATTENTION

- a) The consumption and production cycle are among the key drivers of greenhouse-gas (GHG) emissions. So far, there is little evidence that the decoupling of the economy from GHG emissions is occurring at either the scale or speed required.
- b) Investments in a more sustainable infrastructure - including renewable energy - will themselves, require extensive amounts of energy - largely from fossil sources. This will significantly sap the global carbon budget established by the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) to remain within 1.5 degrees.
- c) To improve the standard of living and well-being of the world's lowest income communities will claim another major portion of the carbon allowance.

Isabelle Parasram

Chief Executive of Social Value UK. Prior to joining SVUK, Isabelle was the Vice President of a major UK political party and a member of its Senior Leadership Team. She advocated on social justice, human rights and equality as Patron of a network for political donors, as a Board Director of a policy research forum and as a Trustee of its associated international think tank. She remains in the latter two roles.

She is a past Parliamentary and London Assembly candidate who later became an ambassador for the party she represented.

Professionally, Isabelle worked nationally and internationally as the Head of a barristers' chambers and CEO of an HR consultancy she founded in 2012, following a lengthy career as a barrister in the public, private and charitable sectors. She specialised in advising C-Level Executives on how to grow organisations that are legally and 'best practice' compliant – as well as reputationally sound. She retains her practising barrister status.

A former civil servant, Isabelle was awarded one of only 30 places on a 3-year leadership programme aimed at preparing the next generation of Directors-General and Permanent Secretaries serving the Government.

In addition to holding NVQ assessor and early years and adult education teaching qualifications, Isabelle is a former Trustee of educational charities – including a grant making body – and a former school Governor.

About Dr Shann Turnbull

Shann Turnbull was educated as an electrical engineer in Tasmania and a scientist in Melbourne. After obtaining an MBA from Harvard he became a serial entrepreneur founding new enterprises including two public mutual funds and three firms that became publicly traded. He obtained additional experience as Chair and/or CEO of listed companies as a founding member of a private equity group that acquired and re-organized eight public companies. He wrote Democratising the wealth of nations in 1975 and became a founding author of the first educational qualification in the world for company directors. His PhD research established the science of governance by using bytes as the unit of analysis. He is prolific author on reforming the theories and practices of capitalism by adopting ecological forms of controlling and owning realty, enterprises, and money. Shann resides in Sydney, is married with three children, four grandchildren, a snow skier and tennis player.
